CIA Talent Scout Here

A Central Intelligence Agency talent scout will be at University of New Mexico Wednesday through Friday to interview persons interested in intelligence careers.

He is William B. Wood, Southwest personnel representative. Requirements include degrees.

Applicants should have a flair for foreign language study.

CIA persons must be willing to serve without public recognition, in the faceless anonymity of seeking, sifting and analyzing facts for the National Security Council.

Also to be interviewed at the UNM Placement Bureau are applicants for stenographers.

Starting salaries in the CIA professional ranks range from $6,000 to $11,000 yearly.

Stenographers' starting pay ranges from $4,480 through $5,000 and transportation to Washington, D. C. is provided.
